they entered. All eyes were centered on the large salon where the ceremony was to take place. This large apartment was richly decked in green, the deep window recesses banked in palms, and branches of wild smilax framed the palms, and branches of wild smilax framed the large mirrors. A raised platform was erected just under the music gallery. Back of where the bride and groom stood to be married were bushes of blooming Marguerites. A double line of palms made an aisle reaching from the platform to the door, up which the bridal party walked. At 7:30 Rev. Father Smith, S. J. walked. At 7:30 Rev. Father Smith, S. Andrews, advanced to the dais from a side door.
The bridal march announced also the entrance from the large door of the bride and her train of attendants. First came the six ushers, then the bridesmaids, the maid of honor, the bride and her father, Mr. Thomas Janney, and the six other ushers. At the dais the bridesmaids stood three on either side, the ushers back of them and the relatives of the bride and of the grown had the first place among the spectators.

d'affairs, being at home to her friends for the first time this season. The house 1500 13th street, which has been rented by the Corean government for several years past, is now its own property and permanent home. It is a bright pleasant house and affords so much room for a large gathering of people as that of yesterday as to cause much surprise to everybody.

Phillips, Gailland Hunt, S. Ed. Redfern and Hugh Legare.

The bride was the center of all admiration during the entire evening. Her wedding gown was as dainty as her style of beauty. It was of white satin, the front width draped in white mousseline de soie. The bodice had a heartshaped neck and long sleeves. A fall of old point applique came over the high shoulders and fell in sash ends over the drapery. She wore diamond earrings, her wedding ring was a band of diamonds and holding her veil to her hair were three large diamond stars, the groom's gift. The tulle veil was edged with a deep border of point applique. She carried a Mrs. Groff. Representative and Mrs. Coggawell,

The Corean legation was the scene yesterday them and the relatives of the bride and of the groom had the first place among the spectators. The bridesmaids—Miss Mott of Virginia, Miss Ames of Chicago, Miss Mattie Buckler and Miss Niles of Boston, Miss Johnson and Miss Posano of Baltimore—wore skirts of white tulle and square-necked jackets, with high puffed sleeves of white sicilienne. Each wore the bride's gift—a pearl true lover's knot. The maid of honor—Miss Mae Allen Clagett—wore a demitrained skirt of tulle and a Louis XIV jacket of lustrous white brocade. Her favor from the bride was a gold heart encrusted with diamonds. The ushers were Messrs. Swann Latrobe, Walter Andrews, Clary Ray, Charles McCauley, Magron and Birney of New York, Edwark Clark of Boston, Montgomery Blair, Lee Phillips, Gailland Hunt, S. Ed. Redfern and Hugh Legare.

The bride was the center of all admiration of the charming young hostess the parlors were softly lighted and her quaint native dress was in harmony with the gowns of the voung ladies who assisted her. Mrs. Ye Cha Yun wore a pale blue brocaded silk, made in the native style. Her shining black hair was worn low in a knot in which some pretty pins glit-tead. She speaks English fluently and takes great interest in the study of American customs, which she is now so well able to follow. Singularly enough, her English is almost entirely without accent. Mr. Ye Cha Yun, the dignified representative of the Corean government, made a most efficient aid to his wife in entertaining their callers yesterday Miss Riggs, in a soft pink cloth with a trimming of mink, and Miss Ayers, in old rose satin and light brocade, were in the drawing room with the hostess. A COURT OF APPEALS The Bill Reported With Several Importan

Mr. Stewart (Vermont), from the committee on judiciary, has reported, with amendments. the bill providing for a court of appeals for the District. The bill, it will be remembered, provided for the establishment of a court of appeals for the District, which shall consist of one chief justice and three associate justices to be appointed by the President, the salary being $7,500 for the chief justice and $7,000 for the associate justices. The court, by the bill, is to establish not less than two terms in each year and is to make such regulations as may be necessary for the such regulations as may be necessary for the transaction of its business. A clerk at $3,500 and a crier at $1,300 are provided for.

Section 7 of the bill provides that any party aggrieved by any final orders, judgment or decrees of the Supreme Court of the District may appeal therefrom to the court of appeals and the latter court shall affirm, reverse or modify such judgment or decree. Any final judgment of the court of appeals may be modified, &c., by the Supreme Court of the United States upon a writ of error. The court of appeals by the bill is given jurisdiction over appeals from decisions of the commissioner of patents.

The bill also contains a provision that whenever the number of justices of the Supreme Court of the District is by death, resignation, retirement or otherwise reduced to five the retirement or otherwise reduced to five the court shall then in future consist of one chief justice and four associate justices. The bill also provided that the chief justice of the Supreme Court shall receive $6,500 and the Supreme Court shall receive $5,500 and the associate justices $6,000 per year.

The committee made several amendments to the bill. The court of appeals was made to consist of one chief justice and two instead of three associate justices. The salaries are made $5,500 for chief justice and $5,000 for associate justices instead of $7,500 and $7,000, respectively. The clause in reference to appeals to the Supreme Court of the United States is amended somewhat, and the provision stating the salaries of the justices of the Supreme Court stricken out.

stating the salaries of the Jastices of the Supreme Court stricken out.

The report on the subject quotes largely from the nemorial on the subject from the District Bar Association, showing the imperative necessity for an immediate revision of the judicial system of the District. Attention is especially called to the trouble and disagreements now resulting from the Supreme Court in special and general term. The report finally says: "The plan embodied in the bill under consideration has received the deliberative approval of the bar of the District. It creates a court of appeals in the District, to which court shall be transferred the present jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of the District in general term."

Preparations for the New Ball Park-Players Who Are Expected to Sign. Work on the new ball park will probably be begun in about a week and will at first consist in getting out enough of the trees to allow work to be started on the grand stand. It has been decided to lay out the grounds so that the batting will be done from the southwest toward the northeast, and this will obviate the great trouble with the arrangement of last year, which put the sun in the eyes of the secand third basemen, the short stop and the left and center fielders. Under the new arrangement the glare will be in the eyes of only the second baseman and the right and center fielders. GEN. WILCOX'S WIDOW.

She Sues the District for $10,000 for Causin

Mary R. Wilcox, administratrix of the estat of the late Cadmus M. Wilcox, by Linden Kent, today entered suit against the District of Columbia to recover $10,000 by reason of the death of Gen. Wilcox or December 2 from injuries received on November 28. She alleges that the street (14th and G) was in an unsafe condit ion that there were four trenches there for the laying of a short railway not properly barri-caded or guarded by signals or lights, and by reason of the negligence of defendant the de-ceased at 6 o clock in the evening stepped into one of the trenches, was thrown down and rup-tured a blood vessel of the brain and received mortal injuries, which caused his death mortal injuries, which caused his death

Last evening the National Rifles' Hall was filled to overflowing by the members and friends of Pioneer Council, Sons of Joundab, to witness an entertainment for the benefit of the council. The program was made up of the farce "Box and Cox," in which the characters were taken by Miss Mary A. Saltmer and Messrs. Edward Willasey and B. Helladay-Dorcy: the farce "Turn Him Out," in which the Dorcy: the farce "Turn Him Out," in which the characters were taken by H. K. W. Patterson, James A. Lavcombe, B. H. Dorcy, Misses M. A. Hogan and Mary A. Saltmer, F. J. Lawrence and James L. Winters, and the play "In Honor Bound," in which Messrs. Willasey and Dorcy and Misses Nellie Hawshaw and Edith L. Price took part. These pieces were well set and well enacted, some of the characters being fully up to the work of professionals. The floor was then cleared for dancing, which was enjoyed for some hours.

In the case of John Proby, who plead guilty to petit larceny in December and was sentenced good conduct and the payment of the above amounts. There was some discussion in the court as to whom restitution should be made, the prosecuting witness' whereabouts being unknown. The court directed the marshall to hold the $20.

These rumors are all quieted by the definite action taken by the incorporators in announcing that they will at once issue $25,000 of 7 per cent preferred stock and apply the whole of it to the improvement and repair of the market building, and that they propose to maintain and conduct the market. Gen. Ordway, on being subsequently questioned by a Star reporter, stated that as the purchaser and part owner of the property he could not consent to transforming the market into an armory for the National Guard, which it had been rumored was his object in making the purchase, as it would place him in a very equivocal position in renting it for that purpose. He stated that the purpose of the new company is to rethat the purpose of the new company is to re-deem it from its present condition of filth and dilapidation and equip it with modern fixtures

"Shorty" Johnson and Isase Bragg were in the Police Court today, and each charged the other with assault. The former is of small stature, although he has lived here more than stature, although he has lived here more than twenty years. The other is more than seventy years old and is often called "Gen. Bragg." Both are colored and Policeman Ellis said to Judge Miller that both were habitual drunkards. The larger part of the old man's nose had been cut off during a fight between them in a house on Ohio avenue. The question before the court was who cut off the general's nose.

The testimony was that Shorty did it and he acknowledged his guilt, but the old man was under the impression that Johnson's mother cut his nose off with a brick.

"Shorty" spoke up in defense of his mother and said that he cut off the old man's nose and he did it with a stick.

The original bill also provided a penalty on boys smoking on the streets. This provision, boys smoking on the streets. This provision, which was also in the New York law, turned out to be practically a dead letter, and the Senate committee here struck it out. The bill now only requires the President's signature, and then dealers in tobacco will have to be a little careful who they make their sales to.

The letter referred to what he calls the absurd and unjustified forebodings of the same people when the present law was passed, and in answer to the assertion that if the pending bill became a law the United States would be flooded with European silver Mr. St. John sarcastically remarks upon the failure of the European bankers to take advantage of the opportunity to flood with silver the markets of India, which were always open to silver at a lesser ratio t gold than prevailed in the United States WHAT BISMARCK HAS SAID.

Mr. Francis G. Newlands declared that Germany would never have succeeded in demonetizing silver without the co-operation of one of the strongest nations of the earth—the United States. Bismarck himself had since pronounced trict.

The Senate passed the bill on Saturday, and yesterday afternoon the House gave its sanction. The bill provides:

"That hereafter no person in the District of Columbia shall sell, give or furnish any cigar, cigarette, or tobacco in any of its forms to any minor under sixteen years of age, and for each and every violation of this section the offender shall, on conviction, be fined not less than #2 nor more than $10, or be imprisoned for not less than $10, or be imprisoned for not less than five days nor more than twenty days."

The original bill also provided a penalty on boys smoking on the streets. This provision, which was also in the New York law, turned where, as every one knew, a small draft by the Prussian government for gold drawn on the Barings had brought it about.

Without concluding his statement Mr. New-lands gave way to Mr. Milliken, who argued in favor of a proposition to restore the value of the subsidiary coin, debased in 1858, from a fear that it would otherwise leave the country. As it was nearing the hour of adjournment Mr. Bartine moved that when the committee adjourn today it be to meet tomorrow at 10:39.
